

Coast to Coast Beaches

Four days of sun, salt and long swims from Limassol to Paphos, a different bay each day on easy coastal drives.

BASE

Limassol

PACE

A car makes the coast open up, each beach a short hop from the last

BEST MONTHS

June to October for warm sea, May and late October quieter

GOOD FOR

Beach lovers, families, swimmers and snorkellers

Limassol sits at the heart of the south coast, close enough for the white chalk coves of Governor's Beach and well placed for the long run west toward Paphos. The beaches change character every few kilometres, from dark volcanic sand to broad open miles and sheltered bays.

This four day plan keeps mornings easy and the drives unhurried. Base yourself near Limassol so every beach is a simple coastal hop, pack for long swims and let each bay set its own pace.

DAY 1

Governor's white cliffs and dark sand

MORNING

Leave Limassol after a late breakfast and drive east for about twenty minutes to Governor's Beach. The white chalk coves frame dark volcanic sand and water clear enough for an immediate long swim. The cliffs give natural shade once the sun climbs.

AFTERNOON

Stay for the afternoon. The coves stay calm for snorkelling close to the rocks and the sand holds the heat without feeling crowded. A simple beach taverna covers lunch if you prefer not to picnic.

EVENING

Return to Limassol as the light softens. Dinner in the old town or by the marina keeps the evening slow after a first full day in the salt.

DAY 2

Lady's Mile and the salt lake flamingos

MORNING

Drive south from Limassol for fifteen minutes to Lady's Mile Beach. The sand runs long and open, the water stays shallow and warm, and families settle easily for the morning. Bring shade and settle in for a proper swim.

AFTERNOON

After lunch take the short hop inland to the Akrotiri salt lake. In winter you may find flamingos feeding on the shallows, even if the rest of the year the lake is simply a quiet open expanse under a wide sky.

EVENING

Head back to Limassol for the evening. A seafront table and grilled fish keep the coastal rhythm going without any rush.

DAY 3

Kourion and Pissouri under the cliffs

MORNING

Drive west out of Limassol for half an hour to Kourion Beach. The sand sits beneath high cliffs and the swimming is excellent once you claim a spot. The water deepens gently and stays clear through the morning.

AFTERNOON

Continue a short hop further west to Pissouri Bay. The bay is sheltered and curved, the village above offers a few quiet tables for a late lunch, and the afternoon swim feels private under the surrounding slopes.

EVENING

Drive back along the coast as the sun drops. Keep dinner simple in Limassol, perhaps a meze near the water, and leave the night open.

DAY 4

West to Coral Bay

MORNING

Set off early for the longer drive west past Paphos to Coral Bay, around an hour from Limassol. The golden crescent of Coral Bay opens with soft sand and bright turquoise water that rewards the journey. Settle in for the first long swim of the day.

AFTERNOON

Spend the afternoon swimming and snorkelling the clear shallows. Coral Bay has easy facilities if you need them, yet it remains simple to find a quieter stretch of sand and stay put until the light softens.

EVENING

The return drive to Limassol takes you through the late light of the west coast. Keep dinner easy near your villa and rest well after four days of sun and salt.
